The vicinity of "Camptown Navy Yard" and the "City of Good Lager" were dangerous places; for there the bail phyer could have said, "I have found" a wail that basiled the force of the "Atlantic" waves and a "Ron" that showed the exception to the rule, in "Union' there is strength." But unis temporary suppremacy of New Jersey was not "Mutual" as far as new York was concerned; for the representatives of the latter had visited the grounds of the former and waded to victory. But to leave this "flight of fancy" and come again to "Innotia," The base ball loving community found during the entire past season food for anxiety and anticipations, and the goddess of victory played the coquette as extensively and as regardiesly as any of the McPilmsey damsels could hope to have as a precedent. The Mutuals defeated the irvingions; the latter see-sawed with the Atlantics, who in turn conquered the Mutuals, and these again worsted the Atlatetics. Who alternated with the Atlantics. The "Haymakers" raked down their opponents, and many of those in turn so deluged Lae "stacks" of the former as to render them worthless. The Actives carried out their name in lively style; the Orientals proved that iney rose quite carriy; the Greenits proved that iney rose quite carry; the Stars twinkied with a pleasing lustre; the Mohawks capaired several scaips; the Empires loot but little of their possessions; the Eckfords trimmed their ship in At shape, and the Unions, after frightening a here of Burnalos and waving their hanner over Niagara Falls, and succumbing to the irvingtons, Mutuals, "insymakers," Actives, Athletics and Orientals, grasped the emblem of supreuncey from the topmant of the Atlantics and succumbing the ramoes and preparing for what will make proved the season of the probabile standing of affairs. All the individuals who have especial regard for the enforcement of the rules in their purity and enterety have followed the mythical "star of empire," and in their neighborhood the game will, no doubt, be seen in its excellence on the field. The plans for the season are many, but as no one "can tell what a day may bring forth," it is needless to anticipate. The tournament at Magara Falls in June will be a grand feature. The westward trip of the Atlantics and the castward trip of the Unions will be events of note, and the peason with its evident and ex-

Yellow Fever Beginning to Rage at Vern Cruz-Rumors of Another Foreign Interven-

The warm weather is fairly upon us once more, and that dread disease known as the vomito, upon which Cortes depen led to defend his chief commercial city from assault during the "heated term," has again commenced its ins dions ravages. As with entirely free from it, and the foreigner, though com-paratively safe during the prevalence of the northers, is never entirely so. With the natives it is regarded with no more thought than other diseases peculiar to the climate. Indeed, it is seldom that those born in the city are affected by it, and this exemption from it is not lost even when they have passed successive years in other and entirely different citmates. However, those only are safe who are natives of the city or the country immediately around, known as the Tierra Callente, the inhabitants of the higher latitudes being even more susceptible to it than foreigners; and for this reason the people of Jalapa, Orizaba, Cordova and the other towns among the mountains avoid a visit to the coast than foreigners; and for this reason the people of Jalapa, Orizaba, Cordova and the other towns among the mountains avoid a visit to the coast during the infected season, save prompted by the greatest necessity. The cases are not specially reported, and the number taken with it is therefore never known, nor is it the subject of interest save to the foreigners whom duty calls to remain here.

The principal subject of conversation here, and, as I learn, in various portions of the epublic, is the proposed intervention, as report says, of at least one European Power in the affairs of Mexico. This Power, strange to say, is England, and the various stories in reference thereto chaim to be so authentic that much expectation, if not anxiety, has been aroused. These stories are so numerous that it is somewhat difficult to get at the leading one. It can be set down, however, as this:—That England has officially announced her intention of blockading the Mexican ports until her demands are complied with, and for that purpose a fleet will be sent down in November, when the sickly season will be over: that of this the United States has been notified. This is the main story, around whigh an innumerable amount of embellishments have been thrown. For example, it is stated that England is to receive the moral and, if need be, material support of France, of Spain, or of both; that the seaport towns will be selzed and held for the payment of her debt; that the United States will be defied, as her financial condition and her internal dissensions reader her comparatively powerless. Others less rational are told and believed. I have been unable to trace the statement to any reliable source. But this much is certain that that fruitful source of information, "private letters," received here from Europe speak of some interference in Mexican matters upon the part of one or more of the European Powers as a foregone conclusion, and the story is believed by certain Mexican officials of some prominence.

ACCIDENTAL SHOOTING.—A man named Cécil Bause fired off a gun near the old arsensi grounds, on Priday evening, when portions of the charge lodged in the knee of one boy and the hand of another, both of whom were playing among a group of boys at the place. Bause was taken before Recorder Aldridge saturday, when he protested that the shooting of the boys was purely accidental. He was, however, held to ball, and in the meantime had to pay a fine for a breach of the city ordinance.

of water or a mound of slush. It is safe, perhaps, to say that now, at last, the genuine anchor bearer has been shown, and the ball tossers coming from their winter haunter rush to the open fields, not stopping to take the accustomed stretch after rising from a lengthened slumber, but striking out as they run along, their first tightly closed and throwing their arms forward with nervous jerks, describing a movement like the eccentrio in a steam engine.

It is safe, indeed, to hope that the ball season has fairly opened, and placing taith in that hope, and remembering the status of affairs at the close of THE FAST SEASON, it is safe to assert that the game this year will be found to have attained, it possible, more universal popularity and to have created more unbounded interest. Last season opened with the banners of New Jersey sying proudly in triumph over the representatives of Kings and Westchester counties. the Union county Oyer and Terminer, Judge Depue presiding, the trial of the alleged perpetrators of the affair known as the Westfield bond robbery was concluded and the case given to the jury. As the case has excited a great deal of interest in this section of the State it may be well to relate briefly the details. On the evening of the 25th of June, 1867, in the middle of a tnunder-shower, a large, heavily built man called at the residence of an old gentleman nanced Jacob Miller, situated about two miles from the village of Westfield, in Union county, and desired to see him. He was invited in out of the rain, and immediately following him came three others. He then announced himself as a United States officer, but searcely before any reply could be made Mr. Miller, who was nearly seventy years of age, his wife, a young girl named Clark, the daughter of a neighbor, and a half-witted servant man were separately pinloned hand and foot and a demand made for all the money in the house. The old gentleman having behas excited a great deal of interest in this section of young girl named Clark, the daughter of a neighbor, and a half-witted servant man were separately piuloned hand and foot and a demand made for all the money in the house. The old gentleman having become somewhat refractory one of the ruffians struck him a terrific blow with a slungshot on the forebead, rendering him insensible and causing a severe wound. One of the miscreants remanned in charge of the prisofers while the others proceeded through the house and pillaged it of seven bonds of the value of $1,000 each, two valuable gold watches and several other articles. They then, after threatening the helpless couple and their companions with instant death if they gave any alarm, left the house. About midnight one of the number knocked at the door, but received no answer, and soon went away. Meanwhile Mrs. Miller managed to get loose and soon freed the others. The following morning a full statement of the artair was given to the authorities, by whom the necessary investigations were at once proceeded with. Two weeks afterwards four men named Henry Little, Aaron Little, his brother, Andrew Keith and David Newning, all of whom reside in the neighborhood and bear a striking resemblance to the robbers, were arrested at the complaint of Mr. Miller. The two Littles and Keith gave ball in the sum of $8,000 each to appear for trial. Newning stood committed. At the approach of the September term, the time set down for the trial, it was discovered that Henry Little, who had been only a few months out of State's Prison for horse stealing, had slipped out of the way and managed to keep so until after the term of court had concluded. At length he was caught by Chief of Police John Keron at the Market street depot in Newark and brought to Bilzabeth. On Thursday last the prisoners were brought up for trial. They were all tried on a simple indictment of assault and battery, which, however, involves alt the lissues in the case. The jury had not reported up to a late hour State's Prisoners were brought up for trial. They were all

It rapidly gained headway, and in about an hour from the time the fames were discovered, notwithstanding the efforts of the citizens, the framework of the building fell in. It was then concluded that further efforts at restraining the progress of the fames would prove profities, and the fire companies turned their attention to saving the house adjoining. In this they were successful. The loss is estimated at $6,000, on which there was an

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

The stock market was in a state of semi panic during nearly the whole of hast week, and a heavy decline took place in all the speculative ralway shares. New York Central sold down to 108% on Priday morning, Erie to 66%, and Hudson River to 123%; but following this there was a sharp raily, although the market was unsettled and heavy again when it became known that the Erie bill had passed the Senate at Albany substantially in its original form. Express shares declined from five to ten per form. Express shares declined from five to ten per cent on Wednesday morning, but subsequently recovered a part of the decline under the purchases of the parties controlling them. In point of real value, however, they are entitled to rank with Atlantic Mail. The break of sixty-two and a half per cent in a couple of hours in the latter stock naturally aroused the distrust of money lenders, and the warning thus conveyed will, it is to be hoped, not be lost upon the banks that for a long time past have been in the habit of loaning heavily on the speculative railway shares with narrow margins. The prices of these as well as of the miscellaneous stocks are largely above their real value, and an ultimate breakdown, such as this country witnessed in 1857, and England in 1866, is inevitable. It has been threatening for a week past, and continues to threaten; but the speculators for a rise in Wall street will move heaven and earth to avert this revulsion, and as the most effectual means of accompishing their purposes they, alike with many others, will urge upon Congress the Western programme of an inflation of the currency. With Ben Wade as President they believe that fifty or even a cured, and with these the bubble of speculation on the Stock Exchange could be blown to yet huger diknow that the consequences of inflation would be ruinous; but the speculators care nothing for this, their object being merely to postpone the crash which must finally come by temporarily producing an artificial prosperity under the delusive influence of a fresh issue of paper money, and nothing but this can save those who are loaded up with stocks at present prices from heavy losses and in many instances absolute ruin. The railway system of the country is so far rotten that there would be no inducement for investors to buy railway stocks unless at quotations varying in most instances from twenty to forty per cent below those now current, and hence they are likely to remain footballs of speculation in Wall street until they reach that point of depression when they will be absorbed for investment. At the close the market was unsettled, and the danger that attends anything that is dependent upon the life of one man is making itself felt in various ways even among the veteran speculators of the street, and the public does well to leave stocks to the brokers and other professional operators. At half-past five last evening the the quotations were as follows:—New York Central, 113%; Erie, 66% a 67; Hudson River, 126% a 128; Reading, 87% a 87%; Michigan Southern, 87% a 87%; Cleveland and Pittsburg, 86% a 87%; Cleveland and Toledo, 102 a 10234; Rock Island, 89% a 89%; Northwestern, 61; preferred, 72 a 72%; Paeific Mail, 91% a 92; Western Union Telegraph, 36% a 37; Port Wayne, 101 & a 101%; Illinois Central, 141 1/2 a 141 1/4; Michigan Central, 114 a 115; Ohio and Mississippi, 30% a 30%; Canton Company, 48% a 47%; Atlantic Mail, 30 a 31; Cumberland preferred, 31 a 33; Mariposa preferred, 9% a 10; Toledo and Wabash, 49.

distrust of the speculative stocks having quickened the demand for investment, and prices were higher at the close than at the beginning of the week, while the tendency was strongly upward in view of returning monetary ease and the disbursement of the May interest on the public debt, much of which will, as usual, be reinvested in United States stocks. This reinvestment of interest which occurs for already the supply of United States stocks in Wall street is very light, and as the demand increases it can only be supplied by drawing securities out of the hands of investors, conversions of the remaining $185,000,000 of seven-thirty notes into bonds, of course, excepted. While nearly all other stocks are selling at prices largely above their real value, govselling at prices largely above their real value, governments are very little above par, allowing for the accrued interest, because, like the former, they have not been inflated by speculation; and no surer sign of the firmness of the basis on which they rest, and the confidence of money lenders in the stability of their value, could be found than was witnessed last waste for white all other stocked witness with panels. week, for while all other stocks declined with panic-

The foreign exchange market was very firm during the week and on Friday the leading drawers advanced their rate for sterling at sixty days to 110%. The supply of bills is limited, while the demand from importers is moderate. At the same time the prospective demand early next month for the remittance of that part of the May interest on the five-twenty loan not reinvested in United States bonds is not without influence upon rates. The aggregate of the interest to be disbursed on the 1st proximo will exceed twenty-five millions, of which more than ten millions is due to persons residing abroad, and if we may judge by precedent about half of this amount will be remitted in cash and the other half in five-twenties. At the close the following quotations will be remitted in cash and the other half in five-twenties. SUNDAY, April 19, 1868.

The money market was stringent up to yesterday, when lenders evinced the usual disposition to em-ploy their balances over Sunday, and the result was comparative case at seven per cent for call loans. The return flow of currency from the interior has not position than they were a month ago, but it is likely to gradually increase in volume. It will probably be of the banks at this centre will be large enough to make a really easy money market, and meanwhite preference of lenders will continue to be in favor of government and other investment securities as collaterals. Indeed, it may be said that the banks are not willing to extend their loans on speculative stocks of any kind, as they consider themselves aiready too much extended in that direction in view of recent vents and not without good reason. One great cause which is operating against an abundant supply of money in Wall street is the real estate speculation, which for some months past has been going forward with a vigor which in some quarters has hardly been surpassed since 1836. REAL ESTATE MATTERS.

Review of the Sales During the Week. A comparison of the total of sales at auction dur-ing the week, as given below, with the total of last week's sales, exhibits a considerable improvement in the real estate market, and would appear to indicate a renewal of the activity which valled. Sales have been held both in this city and Brooklyn every day, which was not the custom in previous years; but Wednesday and Thursday con-tinue still to be preferred days both with buyer and seller, more property being offered on those days than the others, attracting a better attendance, with firmer prices ruling. The proportion of Brooklyn unimproved property is still in excess in the market of that of New York. Notwithstanding the disappointment regarding the early construction of a bridge across the East river, iots on the other side are still favored by a large class of speculators. The improvement in the weather rendering a residence there not such a disagreeable anticipation or realization as during the winter will probably influence them still higher, although how the possible accomplishment of rapid communication with Westchester county, rendered in appearance nearer of consummation by the passage of the Central Undergrounding Railroad bill, may affect them is yet to be determined. Property at the upper end of the island is certain in this event to appreciate, while it is not unlikely that considerable improved property down town will depreciate in propertion when its great advantage of being near the centres of business is thus shared in by Fort Washington, Harlem or Westchester county. The subjoined is a résume of the sales during the week: of that of New York. Notwithstanding the disap-
